The Horatio Alger Association of Distinguished Americans has awarded Dalton native Tiffany M. Taylor a National Scholar award to help fund her college education. Taylor, who attends West Point High School, recently visited Capitol Hill to meet with Georgia U.S. Sens. Saxby Chambliss, pictured, and Johnny Isakson, who congratulated her on her Horatio Alger National Scholarship of $20,000. Representing all 50 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico, the 108 National Scholars are currently in Washington for a National Scholars Conference. Officials said the students were selected for the scholarship program because they have overcome great obstacles in their young lives.
